EDITORIAL

REAL ALE IS DIFFERENT

Last November a spokesman for Coors, one of the faceless global conglomerates that have replaced the 'Big Six' national brewers of the 1970s, was quoted in the CAMRA magazine, 'What's Brewing' after the company's decision to stop brewing real ale. "Cask drinkers are very regional in their preferences and establishing a new national brand was just too difficult", said Paul Hegarty. "In fact we would question whether there can be a truly national cask brand at all. With cask beer, traditional marketing and advertising just don't work"

Hegarty put the big brewers' retreat from real ale down to a marketing failure, but it did not seem to occur to him that real ale could instead be marketed successfully on its flavours, the quality of its ingredients and competitive pricing. And you don't need to spend a lot if you cut out the bullshit of 'premium branding' that makes the quality of a product inversely proportional to the amount of money spent advertising it.

It is not surprising that this uncomprehending 'marketing failure' has led to the closure of more and more pubs. Take out the real ale because people don't want to find the same 'brands' in every pub they visit and we're left with fizz. But we can buy branded fizz a lot cheaper in bottles or cans in supermarkets than we can on draught in pubs, so why go to the pub at all?

So real ale is the answer if pubs as such are to survive. But not the same real ale (typically Courage Best) in every other pub we visit, please. Turning Ridley's pubs into yet more Greene King pubs may not do them any favours. What we want is a choice. I am delighted to find pubs like the Oakdale Arms that serve a range of different ales. It is always exciting to find a beer at my local from a brewery I've never heard of. (Don't call me a ticker: I don't write them down!) But I tend to steer clear of 'national brands' – funny, that.

Visit the Great British Beer Festival at Olympia (Tuesday 2 to Saturday 6 August) and choose from some 450 draught beers. Join CAMRA and help to persuade the pub companies that selling a good range of regional and local real ales will be good for them, and good for us.

NEWS ROUND-UP

Jennings – the end?

Following completion of the acquisition of Jennings Brothers PLC by Wolverhampton & Dudley Breweries PLC CAMRA is seeking more detailed assurances on the future of the Jennings brewery, beer brands and pub estate. John Holland, CAMRA's Director of Breweries Campaigning said, "W&DB has secured 82.46% of Jennings, but it is clear that a substantial minority of small shareholders are unhappy with the takeover and supported CAMRA's campaign to keep Jennings independent." CAMRA had planned to contact all of Jenning's private shareholders but were told that this could constitute giving financial advice under the terms of the Financial Services Act and so would be illegal.

The addition of Jennings's 128 pubs takes W&D's pub holding to 2,275, back in front of Greene King as the largest of the regional brewers. Mike Benner, CAMRA's chief executive added, "We have several concerns which need to be addressed. What are W&DB's future acquisition plans? Experience shows us that takeovers often lead to brewery closures and loss of beer brands, which in turn reduces consumer choice and competition. If W&DB acquires more brewing capacity, a downturn in market conditions would force them to reduce capacity which could lead to the closure of Jennings brewery."

♦ And the next one, please reported last issue that Roger Protz had warned LCAMRA members at their annual conference that we could expect more deals like Wolverhampton & Dudley's take-over of Jennings and sadly he was right. As we went to press it was announced that T D Ridley & Sons Ltd had accepted a bid from Greene King worth £45.6 million. The 163 year old family firm's 73 pubs will be integrated into the GK estate and the brewery at Hartford End near Chelmsford, in production since 1842, will close by the autumn. The brewing of "a number" of Ridley's brands will be transferred to Bury St Edmunds. What however will become of Tolly Original, acquired when Ridleys themselves took over Tolly Cobbold three years ago and indeed GK's own XX Mild which Ridleys have been brewing under contract?

The deal has come as a surprise. Ridleys' obviously willing acceptance of it meant that there was no opposition to alert CAMRA to what was happening and it is, I suppose, a back-handed compliment of sorts to CAMRA that it was thought necessary to do the deal in this way. For old campaigners, there will be doubtless be echoes of Simpkiss. CAMRA have criticised the deal because of its implications for consumer choice in Essex and East Anglia. Mike Benner feared that there was to be a housing development on the site of a remarkable Victorian brewery. He called on Greene King to reconsider their decision to close the brewery and sell it as a going concern to someone who can use it to brew beer.

When appointed in April this year, Ridley's Managing Director, Bob Wales, said: "the Board and I look forward to the Ridley's business growing and developing. Ridley's is a good business with some excellent and dedicated people at the Hartford End Brewery site". CAMRA now asks what has changed? Ridley's Chairman, Nicholas Ridley, provided no answer to that question when announcing the sale: "After many years of running the company as a local independent business, and following long deliberation by the board, we now believe that Ridleys needs to become part of a larger group. We view Greene King as the best owner to develop our business for the future". What future is that exactly?

Licensing deadline looms

ll involved, the trade, local authorities and the Government (Dept for Culture, Media & Sport) are seriously worried that many publicans don't seem to have understood that everyone needs to apply for a new licence. If they apply by 6 August then they can keep their existing licence under what are called 'grandfather rights'. If they do not, then their existing licences will expire in November and they will have to go through the full application procedure for a new license. The Morning Advertiser for 23 June reports that in the City of Westminster, with 3,600 licensed premises, only 433 applications have been received. There is some dispute as to how easy the forms are to complete. I have heard it described as a 28-page monster whilst one Government minister described it as just a boxticking exercise. Of the 28,000 applications that have been received across the country, it is reported that half have been returned due to errors. It is believed that the situation may be distorted because a number of pub chains will be making bulk applications.

One of the applications that Westminster City Council will not be receiving is from Norman Balon of the Coach & Horses in Greek Street, Soho. Mr Balon, who has the reputation of being London's rudest landlord, has decided to call it a day at the age of 78 because he cannot cope with the new licensing regulations. His leaving the Punch Taverns-operated pub, well known for its association with the late Jeffery Bernard, will very much be the end of an era.

exception of "pre-packaged ambient shelf-stable snacks" although smoking at the bar will be banned to protect staff. There are even stipulations as to the size of 'no smoking' signs. The paper has not impressed the Environmental Heath Inspectors Institute, the British Beer and Pub Association or Ted Tuppen, boss of Enterprise Inns, who all see it as unworkable. From CAMRA, Mike Benner commented: "Banning smoking only in pubs that serve prepared food is crazy and means pubs will be forced to choose between banning food or banning smokers. The impact will be fewer pubs serving food and those pubs that do not serve food will become dominated by smokers".

CAMRA's policy is currently being developed but it will be based on what was decided in April at the Members' Weekend. CAMRA accepts that a total ban in Scotland and a partial ban elsewhere in the UK will happen, it reinforces its campaign for multi roomed pubs, supports a total smoking ban in single roomed pubs and supports the provision, in pubs with two rooms or more, for smoking to be allowed in the smaller of the rooms except where the smaller room is the main bar. It is accepted that there will be a dip in trade immediately after any smoking ban is implemented. If the ban is implemented, it should be phased in over a sufficient period to allow publicans to prepare for it and the Good Beer Guide will probably have a symbol to indicate a smoking room. CAMRA will launch a campaign to encourage non pub-going non-smokers to start visiting pubs again and is calling on pub goers to support its proposals to allow multi room pubs to set aside one room for smokers and to make their views known to Government by emailing smokefreelegislation @dh.gsi.gov.uk was the North West where real ale cost 184 pence a pint and lager cost 211 pence whilst the most expensive region was – surprise, surprise - London where real ale cost 236 pence a pint and lager cost 254 pence. Scotland experienced the largest rise in the cost of real ale with the price of a pint rocketing by 8.07%. The survey was carried out prior to the recent Budget in which excise duty was increased by 2.6%. This should mean an extra 1p a pint of beer but when this filters through to the bar it will probably mean price rises of 5p to 10p.

News from Fuller's

Michael Turner, MD of Fuller's put in a very robust and constructive interview in the business slot on the Today programme on 10/06/05. I wish that the real ale lobby had more spokesmen of his calibre. In addition to their range of seasonal beers as mentioned in our edition, Fuller's have introduced a new, permanent addition to their draught beer range. Discovery is a light, refreshing beer of 3.8 ABV with some wheat in it. It replaces Summer Ale and may well be aimed at being a 'conversion' beer for lager drinkers. That said, I enjoyed my first sampling of it and look forward to more. Fuller's report an increase in pre-tax profits of almost £1 million to £17.8 million, helped by a 5% growth in trade in the City of London with the Telegraph (Moorgate) and the Old Bank of England (Fleet Street) being particularly good performers. The rebranding of ESB is also reported to have been a success, with a15% increase in sales.

The choice of name for Fuller's new beer intrigues me though; what with Adnams Explorer and Hop Back's new beer, Odyssey, I wonder if real ale drinkers are being encouraged to go away. On the subject of names, I note that the Bell, Book and Candle, Spirit Group's "eerie pub" on Ludgate Hill is reverting to its previous name of the Old London.

Young's go for a Burton

Burton, brewed by Young's until the 1960s, is to make a return as one of three specialist ales in the brewery's first beer festival. The event, which takes place in selected Young's pubs and free houses, will begin in mid-September with a cask version of Young's Special London Ale (6.4 per cent alcohol by volume). Young's barley wine, Old Nick (7.2 per cent) will then be on draught from the end of September, followed by Burton (5.5 per cent) in the middle of October. The festival will close with the annual return of Winter Warmer at the end of October.

The festival will be a splendid opportunity to sample handpumped versions of some of Young's beers that are normally sold only in bottles, plus the return of Burton, a rich, hoppy and full-bodied ruby-coloured 3 MINUTES WALK FROM THE NORTH END OF LONDON BRIDGE ...

Horsing around

Young's have just published their annual report and in what the Sunday Telegraph calls "one of his characteristic tirades" John Young has criticised "all of the rules and regulations emanating from Brussels". His particular example is the horse passport. Apparently these require photographs and, as Mr Young points out, you cannot get a shire horse into a photobooth.

The E-class lifeboats can travel up to 40 knots and reach people in distress on the Thames within 15 minutes of the call-out. This year up to the end of May, they have been launched 170 times and rescued 84 people. The RNLI is a charity reliant upon donations and volunteers. Currently over £110M each year is spent running the RNLI, (over £300,000 per day) and that's why every donation and legacy, whether large or small, is priceless to the RNLI and its volunteer crews.

More on pub chains

Ido my best to report developments in the strange world of the pub chains but it is all sometimes quite baffling and whilst I make no prejudgement as to their motives, the acquisition of pubs by people described as 'property tycoons' makes me nervous. At the end of last year the Yates Group were involved in protracted dealings which eventually led to a management buy-out – in the face of fierce opposition from other interested parties. Just six months later, the group has been sold to the property tycoon Robert Tchenguiz who was previously mentioned in the Feb/Mar column. The pubs will be integrated with Mr Tchenguiz's existing ex-Laurel Pub Company purchases as will his latest acquisitions from the SFI Group. SFI, formerly Surrey Free Inns, who run the Slug & Lettuce and Litten Tree outlets, has effectively been run by its bankers since a £20 million 'hole' was found in its accounts in 2003. Mr Tchenguiz has purchased 98 of their pubs - about two-thirds - with the remainder being managed by administrators Pricewaterhouse Coopers pending disposal. Some closures seem inevitable.

Meanwhile another property tycoon, Gary Landesberg, has almost doubled the size of his Admiral Taverns chain by buying 253 pubs from Avebury Taverns.

News from the Oktoberfest

Further to the lederhosen boycott last year, according to a report on the internet, one beer garden at Munich's famed Oktoberfest is ready to serve beer in plastic cups next September, and the city's breweries are outraged. Wiggerl Hagn, who runs the Lowenbrau tent, said that he is tired of cleaning up broken glass and listening to waitresses complaining about carrying the famous 1.5 litre mugs. "We cleaned up almost 26 tons of broken glass on the floor of my tent," Hagn told a Munich newspaper. "The waitresses won't have to carry such heavy loads any more." Calling it an "absurd idea", Toni Roiderer, a spokesman for the city's breweries, said Hagn had been warned he would have to go it alone. "Here in Bavaria, beer is a cultural treasure. When we sit together and chink glasses, the sound is like our church bells, a symbol of harmony and good cheer," said Roiderer.

♦ You can't give it away...

A story courtesy of realbeer.com. A disgruntled ex-employee stole a truck and 53-foot trailer full of Miller Lite beer and left it for residents of a west side Indianapolis neighbourhood to help themselves. Indiana police say the semi-trailer held 14,000 cases of beer but residents drank "only" 1,500 cases valued at $30,000. "I'm really surprised there's any beer left," Marion County sheriff's detective Christa Moncrief said. "I figured it would have been gone within the first week but maybe not a lot of people knew it was here." Or maybe they wouldn't touch it, even for free?

THE BLACK BULL, WHITECHAPEL

AMRA's East London & City Branch Pub of the Year for 2005 is the Black Bull, Whitechapel E1. The pub has been a regular GBG entry and prides itself on the quality of the Nethergate brewery beers, with up to four available at any time. Pictured are ELAC chairman Bob Walker (left) presenting the certificate to publican Tony McCann on 17 May, with thanks to Nethergate for supplying celebratory free beer for the evening.

WHAT'LL

A PINT OF THE USUAL, OR A LIFE-CHANGING EXPERIENCE?

Allow us to introduce you to an old friend. Fuller's ESB, three times Champion Beer of Britain, seen here in its smart new livery. Don't worry, the beer's just the same as ever. But if it's been a while, maybe it's time you reacquainted yourself with its uniquely rich. deliciously fruity flavour and long, satisfying finish. It could well be the happiest reunion of your life.

ESB. THE CHAMPION ALE.

THE LARGEST VOLUNTEER-RUN BEER FESTIVAL IN THE WORLD!

The Great British Beer Festival, held this year at London Olympia from Tuesday 2 to Saturday 6 August, is a beer drinker's paradise, offering something for everyone. It is a unique annual celebration featuring over 450 real ales, plus cider, perry and beers from overseas.

About 200,000 pints of beer will be sold at the festival, enough to fill 1,250 domestic baths. With approximately 1,000 volunteer staff from all over Wednesday 3 the UK as well as from many countries abroad, we afternoon Band of Two hope to serve 1.56 pints a second and welcome more evening Chas 'n' Dave than 45,000 people through the doors over the five Thursday 4 days.

Real ales from over 200 different British brewers include wheat beers, ginger ales and beers flavoured with herbs and spices, besides lots of tasty bitters, milds and stouts.

200 beers from around the world include Russian. German, Belgian, Dutch, American, Australian and Austrian, and not just classic styles but exciting flavours and variations.

Cider and perry too. The Festival features a wide variety of traditional ciders and perries, all dispensed directly form the cask by gravity. You won't find the usual bland mass-produced brands here.

Final judging of the 2005 Champion Beer of members) Britain competition takes place on Tuesday 2 August: the consumer's choice of the best British

From 2 to 5 August you can take part in tutored tastings hosted by experts, including Real ale in a Bottle, Golden Ales and Beer and Cheese.

Full pints are guaranteed. We use oversized lines glasses so you get what you pay for - a full liquid pint every time.

JIM LENAHAN

ong serving member of West London Branch of CAMRA, Campden Hill SPBW and the Ring, Jim Lenahan sadly passed away in June at the age of 66 after a short illness. Jim grew up and lived in Fulham long before it became the fashionable suburb of today. After a spell doing National Service abroad in the Army, he spent most of his life in the building trade before becoming a security guard.

Jim became active in CAMRA in the 1970s and had a unique, encyclopaedic knowledge of the pubs of the West London Branch area, into which he carried out detailed historical research. He was also a keen photographer and built up a library of photographs of London pubs and CAMRA events and festivals over the past 30 years. These have now been kindly entrusted by his family to the Branch for safekeeping and archiving.

The fruits of Jim's labours on historical research and many of his photographs are to be found in the West London and South West London pub guides, and he was a regular contributor to Capital Pubcheck. Recently he played a major role in surveying for the new West London Pub Guide which sadly he has not lived to see published. The guide is to be dedicated to his memory.

Roger Warhurst, Richard Larkin, Steve Williams and Alasdair Boyd joined Jim's family and other friends at his funeral on 16 June at Putney Vale Crematorium. Mourners met afterwards at the Green Man, Putney Heath, to celebrate his life as Jim would have wished...

Jim Lenahan will be greatly missed by everyone who knew him.

A BEAUTIFUL DAY

Plan a whole day out in the Kensington area: two parks and a most unusual house will complement each other.

Holland Park (W14; Holland Park Tube) is certainly different from other London parks. Tucked away from the bustling high street in Kensington, the small park has a soothing effect on the visitor. It's a serene escape from the businesses and upscale shops of Kensington High Street. Lush and well-kept gardens, contemporary statues, a youth hostel, beautiful roses, peacocks preening themselves around the grounds, a Kyoto Japanese Garden and a lovely mural of Victorian pleasure-seekers make up the park, once the grounds of Holland House, now largely gone due to heavy bombing during World War II. Holland House has connections with the famous politician, Charles James Fox and later was the centre of Whig politics, according to Andrew Duncan, author of Walking Village London. During the summer, Holland Park hosts opera in June and two plays by Shakespeare in August; check out their offerings on the Internet.

You'll recall that aging hippie Edina Monsoon of the TV series 'Absolutely Fabulous' had her home in Holland Park, or so she claimed. As the conspicuous consumer of high-end goods, Eddie attempted to be on the cutting edge of the latest fad, so Holland Park was the 'in place' to live. Take a stroll around the area if you have time, especially the mews and lovely squares; two walks that encompass the environment are found in Walking Village London (see above) and Walking Literary London by Roger Tagholm; Tagholm's walk is more comprehensive in range than Duncan's. Famous real people who lived in the area include novelist William Makepeace Thackeray, Robert Browning, G. K. Chesterton, Ezra Pound and artist Edward Burne-Jones as well as the artist Frederic, Lord Leighton, whose house is recommended to visit.

Nearby you'll pass the Leighton House Museum (2 Holland Park Road, South Kensington, W14; High Street Kensington Tube; 020-7602 3316; www.rbkc.gov.uk/leightonhousemuseum) is the house of a talented and highly individualistic man. Admission is 'free for library card holders and children who attend school in the Royal Borough' of Kensington and Chelsea; for others, the fee is £3; concessions, £1. Be sure to consult the opening hours and days before you go. Friend of the Pre-Raphaelites, whose works are displayed throughout his museum-house, Leighton also displayed his own sculptures and paintings. Among those friends whose works are exhibited are William DeMorgan (tiles), Burne-Jones, Alma-Tadema, GF Watts, JE Millais, and Albert Moore (paintings). The lush oriental atmosphere lends the viewer a sense of the creative process of Leighton himself. As president of the Royal Academy, he was revered by other artists. The poet Algernon Charles Swinburne wrote as Leighton's memorial epitaph: 'A light has passed that never shall pass away. / A sun has set whose rays are unequalled in might'. This museum is evidence of that. According to mystery novelist, PD James, '... any reputable museum. . . provides for the safe custody, preservation, recording and display of items of interest from the past for the benefit of scholars and others interested enough to visit' (The Murder Room, 2003). Leighton House Museum has fulfilled this definition.

After a visit to Holland Park and perhaps Lord Leighton's house, head for a Young's pub a short walk away: the Britannia (1 Allen Street, W8; 020-7937 6905). This pub has a collection of Toby character mugs, china plates and teapots in one room; for a more casual atmosphere, see the air conditioned conservatory to the side, with blooming plants. A wide range of Young's beers and good food are available. The Good Beer Guide claims that it is the 'former tap of the William Wells Britannia Brewery', hence its name. It has been a Young's house since 1924. One reviewer on beer intheevening.com ranks the Britannia as one of Young's best pubs, so, with that in mind, make this pub your destination.

If you prefer not to visit Leighton's house, a walk in the neighbourhood is very satisfying, as many artists and other notables made their homes in the area. Blue Plaques abound in both W8 and W14 postcodes. Using A-Z and the partial list below, wander by the houses of famous people:

16 Phillimore Place - Kenneth Grahame (The Wind in the Willows)

2 Palace Green - William Makepeace Thackeray

2 Palace Gate - PRB artist JE Millais (last home)

57 Palace Gardens Terr. - Max Beerbohm

41 Kensington Sq. - PRB artist Edward Coley Burne-Jones (1865-67)

18 Kensington Sq. - John Stuart Mill

3 Kensington Court Gardens - T. S. Eliot lived and died here

29 DeVere Gardens - Robert Browning

34 DeVere Gardens - Henry James (1886-1902)

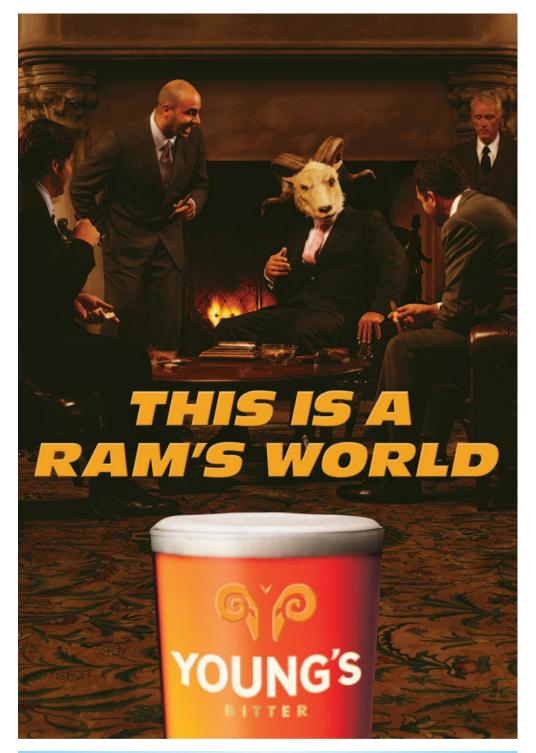

28 Campden Grove - James Joyce (1931)

58 Sheffield Terr. - Agatha Christie (1934-41)

W14

11 Warwick Gardens - GK Chesterton

7 Addison Bridge Place - Samuel Taylor Coleridge

LONDON FOR FREE - MORE POUNDS TO SPEND ON BEER

69 Gunterstone Rd. - H. Rider Haggard 18 Melbury Rd. - PRB artist Willliam Holman Hunt

Kensington Gardens (W8; Lancaster Gate/Queensway Tube), once the grounds of Kensington Palace, is a continuation of Hyde Park to the east. The famous Peter Pan statue, commissioned and donated by Sir James Barrie, is here, as are the Long Water, the Round Pond, the Princess Diana Memorial children's Playground and Kensington Palace itself. According to Roger Tagholm, the Peter Pan statue is 'one of London's most unusual literary monuments, since it commemorates a fictional character rather than its creator. It was erected in great secrecy, under cover of darkness, on the night of 30 April 1912. The idea was that early May morning strollers would think that 'the boy who never grew up: had arrived by magic and a fairytale atmosphere would pervade the spring air... So many children have touched the statue's bronze animals that their tops have become polished and smooth'. You can see the Albert Memorial through the trees, with the Royal Albert Hall behind it. The name Kensington Gardens is apt, for these are truly gardens and invite the devotee as well as the casual visitor to appreciate their offerings. If you have time and feel up to it, take the Princess Diana Memorial Walk, which covers seven miles through four royal parks. Matthew Arnold wrote of the peaceful influence of nature in 'Lines: Written in Kensington Gardens':

Calm soul of all things! Make it mine To feel, amid the city's jar, That there abides a peace of thine, Man did not make, and cannot mar.

The will to neither strive nor cry, The power to feel with others give! Calm, calm me more! Nor let me die Before I have begun to live.

Now it's time for more beer: the Churchill Arms (119 Kensington Church Street, W8; 020-7727 4242) is listed in both the Good Beer Guide and the new publication, 'The CAMRA Regional Inventory for London' which notes its 'window glass, paneling, tiled fireplaces, counter and some snob screens ...'. As CAMRA's West London Pub of the Year for 2002, it comes highly recommended and serves the range of Fuller's beers. No doubt it will be a welcome stop to sit and enjoy some fine brews.

Time to head home, weary but filled with good beer, good exercise, and a dose of artistic culture.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor

As I did not espy this until May 28th, it was some time before I realised that the placing of Reykjavik in Finland (Page 11) was an April Fool's joke!

A friend of mine has recently met an emissary from Wandsworth in the Waggon & Horses, Surbiton. Said emissary said the need to move from Wandsworth (Young's) stems from TfL and the Mayor of London pressurising Wandsworth Council to rid themselves of the Brewery because of the pollution and congestion it causes. I sometimes think the Mayor of London lives on another planet. Wandsworth is congested and polluted because Ringway One was abandoned and its High Street has to act as the main highway from Central London to the South West and the A3.

And, of course, one wonders what activity will be created by the Brewery's replacement. The emissary declined to answer my friend's question as to whether Young's will move or close. (Young's have not decided yet whether to move or to stay put – Ed.)

As I did not join CAMRA until April 1st., (no really!) I do not know if the national or local guides have said anything kind about the Windmill, Hampton Hill. Although, I believe, restricted by Mitchell and Butler to Bass, Hancock's and Young's, the landlord, Finbar Burke, keeps the finest pint in town, certainly the equal of those served by the two houses which are in the current Good Beer Guide. His son, Paul, is a former Irish RFU International who played for nearby Harlequins until last year but now appears on his native sod for Munster.

Dear Editor

Can we look forward to our first non-smoking beer festival soon? Most of the major London festivals serve food and hence would not be exempt from the forthcoming legislation.

CASK MARQUE AWARDS

Formed in 1997, Cask Marque is an independent accreditation scheme jointly funded by participating brewers and retailers, which recognises excellence in the service of cask ale. The award is made not to the pub but to the licensee, who has to pass two unannounced inspections with assessors sampling up to six beers checking temperature, appearance, aroma and taste. Further inspections are made twice a year, with additional random inspections triggered by customer comment.

The aim of 'Capital Pubcheck' is to share information about the latest happenings on the London pub scene including new pub and bar openings, name changes, acquisitions, closures, notable changes to beer ranges etc.

Information is gathered from a variety of sources including London Drinker readers, individual CAMRA members and branch contacts, breweries, pub operators, landlords etc. If you would like to contribute to 'Pubcheck' please send your news to the address below.

This time we report the discovery of a hitherto unnoticed gem in EC2 City (with Bass at £2 a pint!), the rescue of a dockland pub in E16 Royal Docks and the introduction of a good range of ales in an ex-Brakspears Free House in NW1 Marylebone. Young's have refurbished a pub in EC2 City and renamed it after a recently demolished pub, the Master Gunner. The Market Porter SE1 has been sympathetically refurbished and expanded and retains an extensive range of micro beers. Fuller's and M&B are weeding out and selling on Fine Line and All Bar One café-bars respectively. We catch up on many pub closures and the loss of real ale all over the Capital, including those revealed by surveys for the recent N1 (Islington) real ale guide. The 200th Anniversary of Trafalgar has clearly been overlooked by those responsible for renaming the Lord Nelson at EC1 Old St and the Victory in SW19.

Cross references to CAMRA's various pub guides covering Greater London are provided to enable easy updating. The numbers in brackets after each entry refer to the page numbers in the following guides: E - East London & City Beer Guide, 3rd edition; H - Hertfordshire Guide to Real Ale, 2000 edition; HB - Holborn & Bloomsbury Pub Guide; IS - N1 Islington Real Ale Guide; K - Guide to Kent Pubs, 10th edition; 8K - Real Ale Guide to Kent Pubs, 8th edition; KT - Kingston Pub Guide; N - North London Beer Guide, 3rd edition; SE - South East London Pub Guide, 4th edition; 3SE - South East London Pub Guide, 3rd edition; SW - South West London Pub Guide, 2nd edition; W - Real Beer in West London; X - Essex Beer Guide, 9th edition.

If you would like to report changes to pubs or beers, please write to: Capital Pubcheck, 2 Sandtoft Road, London SE7 7LR or e-mail: capitalpubcheck@hotmail.com.

It's not just our beers that are full of character.

Great pubs need great beer. As a London Drinker reader, we are sure you agree with that. But just as customers love a good pint, they enjoy good people too. So at Fuller's, we employ people who are not just passionate about beer, but life as well. Take Gerry. His enthusiasm has seen him through 20 years at the Churchill Arms. He doesn't have regulars, but friends. Because, like all our managers, he knows that the pub business is a people business. And that humour, friendliness and patience are just as important to our pubs as hops, yeast and barley are to our beers.

Le Gotbique

Royal Victoria Patriotic Building Fitzbugh Grove TrinityRoad London sw18 3sx

020 8870 6567 www.legotbique.co.uk

Le Gothique Bar was arguably London's first gastropub when founded by eccentric owner Mark Justin in 1985. Today, as ever, a selection of regional real ales from Shepherd Neame and Ballards Housed within South London's most remarkable building this former orphanage was a war time home to M.I.5 & M.I.6. Cellar trips (by arrangement) reveal the prison cell last frequented by Rudolph Hess. Here, you may also bump into our resident ghost. This truly impressive building is really worth a special visit and large off street parking is available as well as an award winning garden in the sheltered Victorian cloisters. Lunchtime specials at £7.95 plus an extensive evening menu are available Monday to Saturday. Private parties and weddings a speciality (Great Hall seats 250).

Vehicular access via Fitzhugh Grove, off Trinity Road Wandsworth SW18 On foot from John Archer Way, off Windmill Drive. Nearest Station Clapham Junction.

Closed Sundays with private parties on most Saturdays. We are not far from the GBBF - why not join us?

A TRIP TO YOUNG'S

It was an early start on 18 June for our journey down the M5 and M4 and on into South West London for our visit to Young's Brewery, Wandsworth. After doing three laps of the brewery in sweltering heat, we found a way in with the assistance of Michael Hardman. We got off the bus and were guided on foot to the Brewery Tap to be greeted by head brewer, Ken Don and Young's official photographer. In all the heat, we didn't need a second invitation to tuck into foaming pints of Young's Bitter.

After a very appetising buffet and another pint(ish), we were almost ready for our tour of the brewery. First a video to watch, outlining some of the history of Young's. We learnt that the original brewery was established at the Ram Inn (now the Brewery Tap) in 1581 making it the oldest site in the UK on which beer has been continuously brewed. The Young family came on the scene in 1831 when Charles Allen Young and his partner Anthony Fothergill

Bainbridge purchased the brewery. However an extensive fire damaged part of the brewery and the Ram Inn in 1882 and both were rebuilt the following year. In 1984 a new brewhouse was completed and is as we see it today. The brewery has been visited by various members of the Royal family including the late Queen Mother and the Queen.

We then met our guide Justine, and were given some instructions prior to the tour. We were required to wear white coats for its duration and not only was smoking and drinking forbidden, as expected, but so was the wearing of sandals! Happily, our guide was duly prepared for such an invasion of sandal wearers and, with the prospect of so many going around barefoot, she relented and we were soon on our way.

The tour, like the brewing process, starts at the two mash tuns, capable of producing 30 tons of wort from 12 tons of malt and 18 tons of liquor (brewing water) in 90 minutes. Brewing takes place every weekday and the hard-working brewing staff have a daily allowance of 6 pints of beer. As well as the brewing equipment currently in use, there is also space in the current site for the Museum Room which houses the old coppers, one dating from 1869. It was heated by steam from a nearby boiler circulating around an internal coil and was in use until 1988. The other copper dated from 1885 and was heated by a coal fired furnace underneath it and was used until 1975. The flooring around the coppers was an old mash tun floor made from gun metal with each piece individually numbered. The hops used in the various ales are usually English with Goldings and Fuggles to the fore and the lagers include hops from Austria and Germany. At one time water from the nearby River Wandle was pumped to the brewery; however these days, Thames Water (the water company not the river!) is used.

We then proceeded through to see the three new coppers which were installed in the late 1970s - stainless steel and with a steam cleaning system. Justine told us that for brew each Waggledance, 54 jars of honey are used: for Double Chocolate Stout, two large bars of chocolate are added and for Christmas Pudding, almonds and fruit flavours are included. We learnt that one of the 30 fermenters used is 120 years old, is only used occasionally and was actually in use on our visit. All beers spend 7 days in the fermenter to be blessed by the Sabbath, and the spent yeast is sold on to make marmite and bovril.

We moved on to see the old beam engines made by a Wandsworth firm, Wentworth & Son. The first one, built and installed in 1835, is thought to be the oldest such engine anywhere in the world; it was retired in 1945. The other one was built in 1867 and was used for 12 hours a day for 109 years until 1976 driving the mill and pumping the wort - absolutely incredible. Every week, the brewery produces 86,000 pints and their bottling plant produces one million bottled beers, including those for other companies. Young's beers are supplied to 207 pubs and 1300 free houses throughout the country.

After the tour, we stepped outside into the yard and saw where the original brewery had stood along with the 144 foot chimney. We then proceeded to the real reason behind the visit, which was to award the certificate for Winter Warmer, Champion beer of the 16th Exeter & East Devon Festival of Winter Ales, held in January 2005. After a short speech, including the fact that Winter Warmer was our 3rd choice of Young's beer (behind Christmas Pudding and Christmas Ale) for the festival and that the winning beer had spent a night in his garage, branch chairman Alan Cottee duly made the presentation to Ken Don. Naturally many photos were taken along with the obligatory hip-hip-hoorays from Mags Gaskin. We then moved on to the stables to see some of the horses kept at the brewery with some of the drays on show in the yard. These are used for various events including pulling the Lord's Mayor Coach in the City of London plus deliveries to all the Young's pubs in Wandsworth. One particular horse, Buster, apparently enjoys a pint now and then. Some of the horses were on their holidays in Dorset where all the horses originate from and, once they reach 20 years old, they spend there retirement back in the Dorset countryside. Young's have made one exception and decided that General, who is now 20 years old, will remain at the brewery and what a lovely old chap he was. We also saw the many collars used by the horses, each one made personally for each horse, with the collar for the legendary Bower King John on display; this is so large and has not fitted any other horse.

It was then time for us to visit part of the original old brewery built between 1760 and 1780, now converted into the Sampling room with all the original old bricks beams and cellar underneath and 7 unique leather "brewers" seats - a wonderful historic building with numerous medals on display for different beer awards and even a false door hiding a mural of a younger Mr John Young. We were then invited to help ourselves to a choice of Young's Bitter, Special, Golden Zest and Waggledance from cask and, amongst the keg beers, Double Chocolate, Young's Export, Pilsner, Oatmeal Stout and Triple AAA. Some also sampled a special lager brewed for the Italian market called Super Lager (8%) and, on such a hot day, very drinkable albeit in small doses. As you can imagine we had a very good time and before leaving for our hotel, the Brewers Inn, we again thanked both Michael and Ken for such an enjoyable tour, lunch, beers and especially for Young's extreme generosity towards us all.

In the evening we visited some of the Young's pubs in Wandsworth and continued enjoying ourselves. The next morning we made our way to the White Horse, Parsons Green for lunch and a chance to taste a few of the many beers from many parts of the UK and beyond - what a gem! It was then time for the long journey back to Devon with temperatures up in the 30s, but what a memorable weekend.

THE ROCKY ROAD TO LONDON

Isleworth to Kew Bridge (almost) in three hours

This was the crawl I'd wanted to do for ages. Knowing London Road between Isleworth and Kew Bridge rail stations well, I had seen the profusion of pubs along its route. My sincere thanks go to my companion Pete Harris, a good friend from years of 'enjoying' the fun at Griffin Park, for turning out on a freezing night to walk nearly two miles....for fun!

So to our first stop. The Red Lion, a free house in Linkfield Road, reached by turning right outside the station and right again, is a few minutes' walk away. A regular London Drinker advertiser and local branch pub of the year, the Red Lion is a worthy winner of its accolade, being a true community local. It retains separate public and saloon bars, has a mixed clientele, a live music area and an enterprising cask ale policy. Four ales were on (so few? – Ed.), with St. Austell Tribute in fine nick.

Retracing our steps to the junction of London Road and Linkfield Road, next up was the Bridge Inn, a large, modern pub that also features a restaurant and accommodation. It's light, bright and friendly with three ales available, Greene King Abbot and Ruddles Best, and Fuller's London Pride. Both of the latter were in decent overall condition and they also sell them in four-pint jugs.

Most of the pubs on this crawl are on the same side of the road as each other. I believe there was a restrictive covenant in the planning permission that forbade pubs being built on the Northumberland housing estate (between London Road and the A4 Great West Road). My brother lives there and there's not a pub nor even a shop on the estate, giving it a feeling of not having a centre or focus.

A few minutes' walk brought us to our next stop, the Rising Sun, a smallish Fuller's house. It's a one-bar place featuring the usual attractions of TV, food etc, although we thought it needed a lick of paint inside. Pride and Jack Frost were on when we visited, with the Pride in good form.

Just along the road from the Rising Sun is the Rose & Crown, a small but interesting Irish-run pub with a small bar counter and an unusual floor plan. It's a cosy, former Watney place, selling only London Pride as far as cask beer goes but Fuller's finest was in good overall form. The pub also boasts Thai food as well as roasted flesh meals on a Sunday and the jukebox is very freerange. Celtic reels and jigs either side of some lovers' rock tunes anyone?!

Further along London Road is the Coach & Horses, a rare and substantial Young's house in an area dominated by their Chiswick rival. It is most likely that stagecoach passengers rested here for the night long ago before undertaking the final eight miles into London. These days it's an open-plan place with a restaurant. I'd say its food trade was significant as the bar was almost empty but the car park nearly full! The two Young's regulars were on, with the 'Ordinary' in good condition.

Moving along London Road, we pass along the northern perimeter of Syon Park, the London seat of the Percy family aka the Duke of Northumberland. Most of the roads on the estate of that name are named after towns in Northumberland. Just before we arrived in the heaving metropolis that is Brentford itself, we passed the site of a former pub, the Park Tavern, which was demolished a few years ago for housing.

Entering Brentford itself, the next two pubs, the Northumberland Arms (free) and the George & Dragon (ex-Charrington, half-tiled, with original signage) were cask-free so we didn't stop, but the next three pubs are real gems and are well worth cooling your heels in.

We felt like honoured guests within a couple of minutes of entering our next stop, the Six Bells, such was the warm and effusive welcome we received from the landlady. It was a real boozer, complete with a darts match in progress and lino on the floor. It's another one-bar Fuller's house but bears no comparison with the rather bland Rising Sun. Just Pride was on and it was served to us in 1980s griffin-branded half-pint mugs!

Look out for the 1970s overbar with its original lettering and missing Fuller's exterior signage. It was removed during a renovation and never replaced!

If the Six Bells is a great pub, so is its near neighbour the Magpie & Crown.

A long-time London Drinker advertiser, this really is a real ale shrine with a constantly changing variety of superb ales. Four ales were on handpump, including two from the new brewery in Twickenham. I went for Nethergate Priory Mild, which was in great form. Then we were silly: a stilton baguette was shared as long as we did a half of Naish Port cask cider each...in ones! The board didn't know the strength of this and boy, was it strong?! The pub is also a haven for lovers of Belgian and German beers.

Suitably refuelled, we headed to our next stop, the Brewery Tap, which is just off London Road in Catherine Wheel Road, close to the Thames. Three out of three! It's a tiny gaff which was taking a break during a live jazz session (not my taste). Another friendly welcome from the two lovely barmaids on duty, with Pride, Chiswick Bitter and ESB in evidence. The Pride was in spectacular form, even to our jaded palates, and the banter very goodhumoured. As the jazz restarted, we bade them a fond farewell.

On the corner of London Road and Half Acre is the Beehive, a sizeable Fuller's house. On its roof is an ornamental beehive and it's possible that this was part of the Beehive brewery bought-up by Fuller's in the 1930s. Certainly the area behind the pub – now a supermarket – is big enough to have housed brewing plant, storerooms and offices etc. It's a large, sprawling pub with only London Pride on for our visit; its mediocre condition a reflection of the décor so we didn't stop long.

Moving out of Brentford town centre and re-crossing London Road, we came to the Waterman's Arms, a tiny, gentrified Greene King pub. The TW8 postcode has seen a lot of upmarket housing constructed recently and this pub possessed little character in our opinion. Two quick halves of their only ale, IPA, later, we hotfooted it to the next house going east along the north bank of the Thames.

On the site of what is now a drive-in burger restaurant, on the corner of London and Ealing Roads, was once the Red Lion, a sprawling and run-down live music pub. I gigged here a few times in my former life as a semi-pro musician: imagine the incongruity of a synthesiser-based trio playing to sweaty, longhaired heavy metal freaks in a place so dark and bleak that to open the door to the daylight was truly anathema and an act which courted a negative

Brentford itself is significant for three things: it was the site of at least one battle, it is where the Grand Union canal and the Thames meet and it is home to the world's greatest football club. Strangely Brentford F.C was formed as an offshoot of a longgone rowing club and only voted to become an Association Football (as opposed to Rugby Union) club by eight votes to five. Griffin Park was originally an orchard, owned by Fuller's, and given to the fifteen year-old football club in 1904. The ground was given its name as an eternal thank you to the Chiswick brewery and two of the four 'corner' pubs are still Fuller's houses (all four were owned by them once). The playing members chopped down the trees themselves, a stream is said to run under the pitch and it is a place both Pete and myself have spent a good deal of time (and money) visiting. Pete has undertaken the annual 'walk to Wycombe', whereby Bees supporters walk to the away fixture with Wycombe Wanderers, a distance of some twenty-eight miles, so this crawl was a piece of cake in comparison. 'GP' is now also home to my other sporting love, London Broncos rugby league club, so I see lots of it.

A short walk brought us to Captain Morgan's, an Irish-run house. It possesses an unusual shape with a long lounge bar reaching to the back. As is the case with many Irish houses in the capital, horse racing and the two GAA sports are regularly featured on TV. Alas, the sole ale was Courage Directors which turned out to be in grim form. If the beer can't hold your attention, there's a large collection of chamber pots hanging from the ceiling!

The final two pubs on the route, the Waggon & Horses (Fuller's) and the Express Tavern (free) were covered in the last issue by my esteemed colleagues from the London Pubs Group. There are a good many fine houses along London Road and the whole crawl is achievable in an evening ...providing you like walking, set out in good time and are wearing decent drinking trousers!

This is my final feature for London Drinker. I've been writing for this fine magazine for nigh-on ten years and have said as much as I am going to. I'd like to thank everyone that's encouraged me during that time; to my editors Andy Pirson, Dave Oram and Geoff Strawbridge, who gave me the chance to write for them. London is a great city and 'the Drinker' its best guide to its best pubs. Good luck, thank you and goodbye.

IDLE MOMENTS

Hello! ... or if you have not seen this column before –

In looking for a bon mot with which to commence this little farrago I dipped into my trusty dictionary of quotations and almost immediately chanced upon:

You know what charm is: a way of getting the answer yes without having asked any clear question (Albert Camus 1913

And so on to the puzzles, starting of course with the number puzzles (Anyone seen a verb?).

I was wondering what to do for 5BY4 when my eye lighted on the little book of British birds that came as a prezzie when I joined the RSPB many moons ago (Clichés'R'us). "Why not," I thought, "get them going with some Latin names?" So before I thought of a reason not to, I did - and here they are. I have tried to pick several that are fairly obvious (well, they were to me!) as a starting point; then perhaps you can fill in the gaps. In case you haven't noticed the common names are in the first list.

- Starling A. Crex crex Robin' B. Parus major Kestrel Sturnus vulgaris Little owl D. Cygnus olor Magpie Pica pica Corncrake Passer domesticus Mute swan Falco tinnunculus House sparrow H. Troglodytes Troglodytes Wren Erithacus rubecula
- Great tit Athene noctua And so finally we come to the General Knowledge - or at least unthemed knowledge
- By what name is the character Bibendum more commonly known?
- How many red stripes are there on the United States flag? According to Jeremy Clarkson (on Top Gear) what
- European country's population is the tallest? Plenty of RAF pilots travel at supersonic speeds, but what is
- special about one named Andy Green? What is the name of the comet that was hit by JPL's probe
- Deep Impact on 4th July?
- And while I think of it, what do the initials JPL stand for? Designed by Sir John Fowler and Benjamin Baker and formally completed by the Prince of Wales on 4th March
- 1890 what is this famous structure? For those who remember the Avengers (No, not the version with Joanna Lumley), what type of car did John Steed's assistant Tara King (played by Linda Thorson) drive? (and yes, I am very old – but I've still got a motorbike)
- And still on the Avengers, who preceded Tara King as Steed's assistant and who played her?
- Who was the jazz club proprietor who once said of it, "Even the mice eat next door?"

Right, that's yer lot. Until next time . . . (more missing verbs!)
